

Michał Pawłęga is prevention worker, addiction therapist and sexologist. After many years in human rights and LGBTI movement in Poland he moved into healthcare system. Currently he serves as MSM health Lead in Social AIDS Committee, Warsaw Poland, where is responsible for harm reduction, sexual health promotion and HIV, HCV and syphilis outreach testing activities among MSM as well as support for problematic drug users and chemsex users. In 2017 he initiated first national comprehensive Chemsex initiative #cojestbrane (Eng. #whatistaken). It combines harm reduction, individual and group support as well as recovery actions and trainings for recovery centres staff. Nowadays he works for National Institute of Public Health in Warsaw, Poland where he's engaged in the study on infectious diseases (HIV, HCV, syphilis) incidence among ChemSex users and prepares a PhD dissertation on this topic.

He's an author of many papers and articles regarding MSM health, minority stress and effective, culturally tailored support for MSM population. He's also national representative in EU HIV/AIDS, Hepatitis and TB Civil Society Forum and member of Eurasian Harm Reduction Network, European AIDS Clinical Society, European AIDS Treatment Group and Polish AIDS Clinical Society.