

Vasilis Gitakos, Msc PhD , sociologist, is the director of the Therapy Center for Dependent Individuals (KETHEA) since 2013. His Master's Degree is at Human-centered Psychology the University of Strathclyde, and his PhD, is at the Psychology Department of Panton University in Athens. He has been working in KETHEA since 1994 , in research, education and the therapeutic community of the therapeutic programme KETHEA Nostos where he became general manager in 2008. He has been participating both as a coordinator and educator in many educational programs and several conferences and he has numerous publications in scientific magazines, journals, and conference minutes. He's the author of two books: "Counselling Psychology" and "People behind numbers". He's a member of the Greek and European Psychotherapy association, member of the Greeks Sociologists association and member of the Hellenic Association for Person-centered & Experiential Approach.